The Active House Alliance is an international non-profit member association. The Alliance is a global partnership of knowledge institutions, designers, engineers, industries and developers, working together in partnerships and projects to push for innovation in the building industry. The ambition is to create healthier and more comfortable lives for buildings users without negative impact on the climate and environment – thus moving us all towards a cleaner, healthier and safer world.

We work to make the Active House principles in new buildings and renovations. To date there are more than 100 Active Houses worldwide, where the principles have been tested in real life, in all scales and typologies. The Active House label was established in 2017, along with an international network of verifiers. See more on activehouse.info
